BRAvo! Mammogram

“Saved My Life”

On a nice day, Claudia Middleton is outside – hiking, swimming, fishing...

and spending time with her husband, Donnie. She is a free-spirit and she appreciates life now more than ever. In 2012, Claudia celebrated her parents’ 60th wedding anniversary in Florida.

"I remember the day they told me I was cancer-free. I called my dad first," Claudia said. "I said, 'Dad, we did it!' We both cried."

When she returned, life as she knew it came to a screeching halt. Claudia reached to scratch her side as she was going about her day. Then she felt a small lump. She knew she needed a mammogram right away. "I had no medical coverage," Claudia said. Her husband worked in construction and didn't have health insurance. "I knew I could get free mammograms at Reid." She called and was able to get an appointment just a few days later. "It was really simple," she said. When a patient calls Reid Central Scheduling, they ask a few easy questions, and if a woman is over 40 years old and uninsured, the screening is covered by the Community Benefit Mammogram program and funded through BRAvo!

The staff explained to Claudia there was a need for an ultrasound and later, a biopsy. Surgeon Dr. Thomas Grayson performed the procedure. She soon received the diagnosis of breast cancer. "Dr. Grayson told me all my options, and I went home and talked to Donnie," she said. "Donnie told me to do what I needed to do. The choice was mine and he would support me no matter what." After giving it thought, Claudia chose what she considered to be the safest option and had a mastectomy.

One week later, Claudia's father, Gene, was also diagnosed with cancer – for the second time. As Claudia was navigating through procedures and decisions, her father was doing the same. And her mother was in poor health as well. "The entire cancer department was awesome," said Claudia.

Reid cancer navigators walked them through each step, providing them with necessary resources and answering any questions they had. Navigator Kathy MacDonald helped Claudia apply for health coverage through Indiana Breast and Cervical Cancer Program (BCCP), which covers testing and treatment for underserved and underinsured women who qualify for services.

As Claudia lay on the surgical bed awaiting surgery, she became very nervous. "I was starting to freak out, and I said 'Where is Dr. Grayson?'" Claudia explained. "He came right over and held my hand until I was out."

Claudia and Gene took turns with chemotherapy – one in the morning, the other in the afternoon – so they could take Claudia's mother to and from dialysis and doctor appointments. Chemo was followed by radiation. "Kristen Cole (nurse) knew exactly what I wanted. She met me with pillows and blankets and let me sleep through my treatments," Claudia said. "Dr. Riggs and her nurse, Lisa Mustang, were awesome!"

"I remember the day they told me I was cancer-free. I called my dad first," Claudia said. "I said, 'Dad, we did it!' We both cried."

Gene came through with flying colors as well, and was given nearly two more years with his family before facing a heart issue. He cared for the love of his life until her dying day, and Claudia cared for him until he recently passed away.

"My dad was so strong. I was so proud of him," Claudia said. She is thankful for the care she and her parents received. "The Breast Center, Cancer Center, Heart Center and Hospice – they are all amazing! Nice is great, but in the long run I want skilled – Dr. Grayson and Dr. Riggs were both."

Claudia is strong like her dad. She overcame adversity and challenges with grace, and now she is back to appreciating and enjoying life with her husband.

"Without BRAvo!, I probably would have died of cancer. It saved my life, and probably lots of others...thank you."

Reid Cancer Navigators assist patients with appointments and introductions and to answer any questions they may have. This service is funded by donations to the Cancer Fund.

A record-breaking year for BRAvo!

The groundwork has been laid, and BRAvo! is now more than a celebratory word in East Central Indiana and West Central Ohio. BRAvo! is meaning, passion, and enthusiasm all centered around the fight against breast cancer. BRAvo! focuses that positive energy through laughter, fun and art. The result? Hundreds of no-cost mammograms for the uninsured women in our community.

“Breast cancer affects every family, including my own,” said Lyn Hoppe of Hoppe Jewelers. “That said, we support Bravo! and the importance of early screening through mammograms. A simple test could save a life.”

Year four of BRAvo! began in August with groups and individuals putting on their creative hats and developing decorating ideas for the Bra Experience. Shortly afterward, 117 decorated bras arrived on the scene and on the BRAvo! website for voting. Nearly 27,000 votes were cast for the favorites, and the top 12 were named – making their way into the 2014 Special Edition BRAvo! notecard set, now for sale in Reid’s Ginkgo Boutique.

Hoppe’s bra “Timeless” took first place with 5,553 votes. “It is heartwarming to see the hard work of the Hoppe staff and the generosity of the community come together to raise money for this important cause,” Lyn said.

The winners included businesses, individuals and Reid Departments. Many entries were dedicated in the honor or memory of someone special. Tanya Christian’s entry entitled Don’t “Let It Go” – Get Your Mammogram took her theme from the movie Frozen in honor of Sue Taylor.

“My inspiration is my great aunt Sue,” Tanya said. “She has been fighting breast cancer off and on for over 10 years. I hope one day we can eradicate cancer for good, and help women catch it before it is too late.” Her entry placed first in raising the most donations for an individual-sponsored bra.

Filling MacDowell Gallery and Lingle Grand Hall with smiling faces and a philanthropic spirit, the Signature Event attracted a record crowd. This year’s live auction included jewelry, trips and memorabilia ultimately raising over $16,000. Special tribute was paid to Reid’s own Lorri Artman who championed BRAvo! from its inception through her final days, enduring her own fight with breast cancer.

The 2014 BRAvo! story ends with sponsors, volunteers, and community members having collaborated while making memories along the way. The 2014 BRAvo! story ends with net proceeds of $54,553 to fund mammograms in 2015. The 2014 BRAvo! story ends with hundreds of women being screened early, so they can have a hope of living their “happily ever after”.

BRAvo! 2014 raises $54,553 in net proceeds – a new Reid event record!

27,000 BRAvo! votes

14 WINNERS

Once again, BRAvo! brought out the creative side of Bra Experience contributors. Of 117 decorated bra entries, the top 12 vote-winners as well as the top bras raising donations were named winners. The 14 winners were featured in a 2014 Special Edition BRAvo! notecard set, now for sale in Reid's Ginkgo Boutique.

Foundation

welcomes new faces

Richmond native Justin Burkhardt is the new Director of Reid Hospital Foundation.

Burkhardt, a graduate of Richmond High School and Miami University in Oxford with a degree in Organizational Communication, assumes leadership of philanthropy efforts for Reid Foundation, which has raised funds to support patient care for the health system since 1975.

“We are excited to have Justin on our team,” said Randy Kirk, Reid Vice President and President of the Foundation. “His skills and knowledge of Reid and the region we serve will be a great asset for us going forward.”

Burkhardt’s experience includes being on the fund-raising team at Cincinnati Children’s Hospital Medical Center, Wernle Youth and Family Treatment Center and most recently as Director of Resource Development for Boys & Girls Clubs of Wayne County. He and his wife, Abby, live in Richmond with their two children.

“Reid Foundation has a well established and well respected program and team,” Justin said. “I am happy to join with efforts that support the nationally recognized health care provided by Reid.”

In addition to a new Director, Reid Foundation welcomes four new board members for 2015: Garry Kleer of First Bank Richmond, Mike Cramer of Primex Plastics, Dr. Henry Chong of Richmond Cardiology and Derek White of Richmond Housing Authority.

President Randy Kirk recognizes Gary Hemmelgarn and Tim Miller who each served three consecutive terms totaling nine years of service.

SECOND & THIRD QUARTER 2014 GRANTS

Read personal stories about the impact of these grants at ReidHospitalFoundation.org/Stories

Reid Foundation awards quarterly grants to support important Reid programs for our patients and community members. These grants are made possible through the generosity of our donors. Through your support and the programs below, thousands of lives will be touched.

Patient Resource Services - $50,129

Reid's Patient Resource Services Department helps patients with various needs. Your donations to the Charity Care Fund provided medications, home medical equipment, transportation services and outpatient acute dialysis. Donations to the Charity Care and Where the Need is Greatest funds made this grant possible.

AED Program - $87,120

Funded through the Heart Services Fund, this program provides Automated External Defibrillators to area not-for-profit organizations.

Hospice Program - $24,504

The Hospice Fund underwrites costs associated with meeting the needs of Hospice patients.

Meals on Wheels - $5,584

The Meals on Wheels fund provides delivery service for homebound community members.

Oncology Services - $757

The Cancer Care fund underwrites the charity care needs of oncology patients, assists with transportation, medications and dental procedures necessary for treatment of head and neck cancer.

Emergency Services - $31,428

Providing a 2014 Ford Explorer for the emergency medical services program, the Where the Need is Greatest Fund allows for transportation of staff to the scene of a serious accident and offers support for first responders.

Internship Program - $68,000

The Where the Need is Greatest fund provides the Indiana University School of Medicine Clerkship program at Reid, allowing Reid physicians teaching opportunities and rotating future doctors through our community.

Reid Shoes for Kids - $20,000

Through ReidRide6 proceeds, this grant provides athletic shoes for underprivileged children in our community.

TOTAL GRANTS, 2nd & 3rd Quarter 2014	$ 287,522

8 Pitfalls in Writing Your Will

Thinking you don't need a will, or only rich people need a will:

Don't you believe it. Everyone needs a will. If you own property, or even if you anticipate your estate will be small, it's still important to have a will: protecting your assets through an estate plan will avoid delays and expense that reduce the size of your estate.

Thinking you only need a will if you have dependents:

Anyone who owns property needs a will if they want to have a say in who receives it. A will reduces delays, reduces probate (the legal process of proving a will is authentic) and other costs, and minimizes estate taxes.

Believing the state will take care of everything for you:

If you die intestate (without a legal will), you have no way of ensuring your assets will be distributed as you would like. You're giving the state where you live the right to decide who will receive your property.

Since state law can't provide for every possibility, your assets will be distributed through a one-size-fits-all plan: usually children receive equal amounts, and there are no provisions for special gifts for friends or favorite charities. Preparing a proper will is the only way you can be sure that your loved ones are taken care of and that your favorite charities are remembered as you wish.

Thinking you don't need a will because your property is held jointly with your heirs with rights of survivorship:

There can be advantages to doing this, but joint ownership does not reduce the need for a will, and can even create unintended gift tax liability — or deny you control over your property while you're still living!

Writing your will by hand:

A handwritten will is not legal in every state. Yes, there are places where a handwritten will — known as a holographic will — is perfectly valid. But is saving the cost of an attorney's fee worth the risk of having your will invalidated? Keep in mind that the cost of having a qualified attorney draft your will generally is only a few hundred dollars.

Not keeping your beneficiary designations up-to-date:

When you establish savings accounts, annuities, life insurance policies, and individual retirement accounts, you name beneficiaries as part of the process. You should be aware that these named beneficiaries will take legal precedence over any instructions in your will about distributing your assets. When you draft your will, be sure to review all of your accounts — savings and retirement accounts, as well as life insurance policies — to make sure your assets will go where you want, and will benefit the people and/or organizations of your choice.

And then you need to review your plans periodically because life happens, and things change. Tax laws change. Beneficiaries or executors may die before you do. Estate values grow or shrink. Children grow up, marry, and go to college (not necessarily in that order). Family members divorce. Friends become estranged. Charitable wishes may change when charities change.

A periodic review of your will ensures that your estate plan continues to match your state of mind.

Believing you're too young to need a will:

Don't fall into this trap. Actually, this is when you need a will the most. A properly drafted will is your way to provide detailed instructions for the care of young children, and provides you with the foundation you need to build a strong financial future. You can always update your will as needed to reflect changes in your financial situation.

Leaving everything to your spouse:

This is the obvious choice for many people, but there are a few issues to consider:

If an accident claims you and your spouse beneficiary at the same time, the state may end up in control of distributing your assets.

If your spouse is not the parent of your children, even if you both agree on what to do with your property upon your death, there is always the possibility that unintended beneficiaries may receive your property.

Your spouse may not feel the same way you do about an heir or charity. This may mean that bequests you would like to make to go unfulfilled.

Being aware of these pitfalls can help you ensure that your will provide security for your estate and your loved ones, while guaranteeing your wishes are fulfilled.

Speak with your attorney or financial planner to get started. If we can be of further assistance, please call Justin Burkhardt at (765) 983-3102.

Continuing to raise the bar, ReidRide6 saw nearly $35,000 in net profit to benefit Shoes for Kids.

The sixth year of ReidRide once again inspired the community to set wellness goals and enjoy exercise with friends and family. In addition, ReidRide rallied the community to support an important program for area youth – Shoes for Kids.

ReidRide hit a new all-time high with 909 registered participants. Even in the drizzle of the morning, 175 volunteers stepped into their specified roles to ensure a fun ride. With the assistance of first responders, school groups and Boy Scouts, riders benefitted from the safest possible conditions.

Telling their favorite parts of the Ride, one participant appreciated volunteers saying, “I loved all the people there to cheer on the riders.” Another made a memory riding with her dad and sharing stories about the vintage bike she rode.

PARTNERING WITH Saucony

The proceeds of ReidRide6 are helping purchase athletic Shoes for Kids throughout the East Central Indiana and West Central Ohio region. Partnering with local organizations, Reid staff and volunteers have delivered 1,153 pairs of shoes so far this year.

A new sponsor joined the initiative in 2014. The Saucony Run For Good Foundation awards grants to organizations that are promoting healthy lifestyle programs for children. Like Reid, they are committed to helping prevent and reduce childhood obesity.

"The Saucony customer service team has been working here in the Richmond area for the past eight years," said Director of Operations Chris Teague. "When we heard about the great program that Reid Foundation has created in donating shoes to local kids, combined with the strong belief we have as a company in promoting a healthy lifestyle for children, it was an excellent way to give back to the local community."

The back-to-school distributions were held in August partnering with Salvation Army in Richmond and Connersville, Indiana and with Graceworks in Eaton, Ohio. More recently, serving children who did not receive shoes in August, the Shoes for Kids program provided shoes for a holiday distribution with House of Ruth in Connersville, Indiana; Communities in Schools in Wayne County, Indiana; and Wares Chapel Food Pantry in Preble County, Ohio.

Foundation Director Justin Burkhardt says businesses and individuals in and around Wayne County continue to become more supportive of Shoes for Kids and other community-focused programs. "Whether it is through a corporate sponsorship, a small group gathering donations for the cause or volunteers helping fit children with shoes, we are continually amazed," Justin said.

With the help of a village, kids now have the privilege of running and playing in quality athletic shoes that will survive a year's worth of fun.

"Whether it is through a corporate sponsorship, a small group gathering donations for the cause or volunteers helping fit children with shoes, we are continually amazed," Justin said.
